Congress To-day.

SENATE. - The CHAIR laid before the Senate several communications from the War Department, in response to resolutions of inquiry heretofore adopted by the Senate.

Mr. ADAMS presented the joint resolutions of the legislature of Mississippi in favor of a graduation of the price of the public lands.

After the presentation of petitions and reports. The joint resolutions upon the subject of nonintervention were taken up, and Mr. Jones, of Tennessee, addressed the Senate in their support.

House of Representatives .- The report of the committee of conference of the two houses on their disagracing votes on the land warrant assignment bill was adopted.

The House went into Committee of the Whole on the state of the Union, and took up the deficiency bill; when

Mr. Smith made a speech in support of Young

Mr. Nabers opposed Young America, and gave his views on party questions.

Short Tasks and High Pay.

A newspaper before us regrets the combination of the carpenters of New York to demand $2 a day. A short time ago we heard a professional man remark that if such conduct should be continued by the mechanics of Washington, men of substance and means would vet make them regret it. We have no patience with such slangwhanging.

All the men in any community who have any voice or influence in it are active working men. mechanics, doctors, lawyers, merchants, &c.; and they all resort to the principle of association, or combination if you please, and this principle is essential to the procuring a living price for their services. They are all sustained by it : and who is injured? There are none to be affected but the drones in the great hive; and if these, on account of the increased recompense of labor, are made to perform their share of labor-for this is the most that can be done-is it not clear that they and society at large will be greatly benefited ? Certainly.

It has been calculated that if all the capable people of a large community were to labor in useful pursuits for three, or at most four hours a day, the necessaries, and even a goodly share of the luxuries of life could thus be produced. But inasmuch as but few labor in useful pursuits, on them is imposed the necessity of excessive labor. Now, every step taken by the laborers in any given calling to increase their compensation and abridge their hours of labor is a step towards restoring society to its just and natural position. All that we have to do is to keep a sharp look-out, and see that we do not, by overstepping the mark, invite the competition of foreign laborers, and thus defeat our plans. This is the only possible injustice in the case; and we believe the mechanics of this city at least may be relied on in this respect.

Kossuth and Clay.

Mr. Wm. Henry Burr, who reported for the New York press the speeches of Kossuth, made at all points from New York to Cincinnati inclusively, has addressed us a communication, in which he alleges his belief that the remarks attributed to M. Kossuth, as applied to Mr. Clay, never emanated from that gentleman, but were transmitted to the New Orleans papers by telegraphic reporters, who probably did not hear the speech of which they spoke.

We regret that we have not space for Mr. Burr's communication.

We learn that a Table d'Hote is soon to be established on Pennsylvania avenue-a house in which a well-supplied table will always be kept, with neither lodgings nor bar. Such a concern has long been needed. We hope it may be gotten up in good style and well patronized. A large class of men who will not visit barrooms are at present put to much inconvenience understand the plans aright, the same kinds of accommodation may be expected here that are keep them straight. so highly prized in the eating-houses of New York, London, and Paris. Direct Trade.

We have received a pamphlet from the press of Mr. J. T. Towers, of this city, containing the speech of C. G. BAYLOR, esq., United States Consul at Amsterdam, delivered at the invitation of a committee of the legislature of Georgia, in the hall of the House of Representatives at Milledgeville, in March, 1851. We shall give to this pamphlet an early and careful perusal; and, in the mean time, for the purpose of illustrating its tenor, we make the following quotation :

"Our policy is-· Direct Foreign Trade; "Manufactories of cotton yarns and cotton fabrics: Internal improvements;

"Railroad and commercial alliance with the Northwest and Mississippi valley; "European termini to our railways;

"Commercial distribution, to prevent its concentration at New York: "The Gulf and Caribbean sea-trade, embracing the river Amazon;

While we do not sympathize with any feeling of hostility or jealousy toward the Northern por tion of our Union, but, on the contrary, respect the noble enterprise and admire the genius and intelligence of our Northern brethren, we can so plainly discern in the suggestions of Mr. Baylor the true policy of the South as to wonder and regret that every Southern State is not intent upon the adoption and prosecution of them. The soil, the climate, and every possible facility in the South, invites to this course, while the absence of the independence consequent upon the making large grants of public lands for the conuse of these means constitutes the cause of the struction of various railroads in the West and unhappy political dissensions that exist among us. May these views soon be clearly and fully comprehended, and the commercial and social the shape of land or money.
